

I think the deregulation of radio ownership is an obomination. While FCC employees are not elected officials they are still charged with representing my best interests as a tax-paying citizen. Deregulating radio only decreases the number of news and entertainment sources I have available to me. I actually would like the deregulation rolled back to the Carter-era caps. I am ashamed of any official at the FCC who is so corrupt that they would support further deregulation. They are serving large corporations and not working-class citizens. They are failures as public servants and deserve to be deported to a socialist nation where serving the elite is more acceptable.
